Noah's Animal Hospitals Taking 50 Animals to Help Overcrowding at Indianapolis Animal Care Services

Indianapolis, IN – September 21, 2017 – Noah's Animal Hospitals, one of Central Indiana's largest group of privately owned veterinary clinics, will be fostering at least 50 kittens for Indianapolis Animal Care Services, due to their current overcrowding issue.

Representatives from Noah's will be at IACS tomorrow at 12:30 pm to help pick out and transport the kittens to some of their 8 clinics. Mike and Crystal Thomas, Owners of Noah's Animal Hospitals, will even be fostering a litter of kittens at their home. "Dr. Thomas and I have always supported animal rescues and shelters with their efforts to care for these pets with no home. When we learned that IACS would have to euthanize some to make room, we knew we had to do something. And when "something" turned out to be simply providing some kittens with a temporary place to live before they go up for adoption, we knew we had to help."

IACS currently has over 1,000 cats and dogs in their care, and are even warning pet owners who want to surrender their animal that the risk of that pet being euthanized is extremely high. "Our goal at All Pet Health Care by Noah's is to keep pets with their families, especially if the reason is due to lack of funds to pay for veterinary care," said Dr. Denise Katz, Medical Director at All Pet Health Care by Noah's. "That was Dr. Thomas's reason and vision behind All Pet. And we not only care about keeping people from surrendering their cat or dog to a shelter, but we also care about those pets already in the shelter. I knew when I asked Noah's leadership what we could do to help that they'd step up, but not this much. This is truly amazing."

So far 5 of 8 Noah's clinics will be fostering the kittens starting tomorrow for 3 weeks, when they will be old enough to go up for adoption at the MEGA Adoption Event (October 14-15 at the Indiana State Fairgrounds). Some of the Noah's employees are even taking litters of kittens home with them.

"We always say how lucky we are to have some of the best employees working with us, but this just proves it even more," said Crystal Thomas.
